NORWAY AND VICINITY.
A Saint Patrick's Party.
One of the prettiest parties of the season was the Saint Patrick's party given Wednesday evening by Nettie Fuller at her home on Dauforth street, when she entertained the N. L. O. G. whist club, their husbands and friends. The house was elaborately decorated with orange and green and everywhere a profusion of green candles which gave a weird, mysterious appearance to it all. The color scheme was well carried out, as the refreshment table where candies, lettuce sandwiches, club sandwiches, olives, pickles, oranges and punch were served, bits of Shamrock were strewn on the cloth, the whole lighted by green candelabra. On a table in the double doors was a huge St. Patrick's pie and as the good Irish strains of "The Wearing of the Green" came from the piano, played by Mrs. Brooks, the guests all joined in the song and marched by the pie each drawing from it by a green ribbon. The party was prettily decorated with Shamrock and an appropriate quotation. The playing continued until a late hour when the first prizes, green satin boxes of bonbons, were awarded Mrs. F. H. Cummings and Frank Swan. The booby prizes, a pipe and a shillelagh to Llewellyn Cushman and Mrs. Victor Whitman. Then the twenty-four happy guests departed and people along Main street who were awake at that hour wondered why everybody on the street was whistling "The Wearing of the Green."

Lenten Services.
Lenten services will be held at the Congregational church beginning on Tuesday evening and continuing through the week. The pastor will be assisted Tuesday evening by Rev. Mr. McWhorton of South Paris. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings Rev. Howard Mudge of Second Parish church Portland will preach. A cordial invitation is extended to the people of the community to attend. The aim is, first, to deepen the spiritual life of christian people and, second, to bring as many as possible into active christian service who have stood aloof from such a life heretofore. During the Lenten season as we approach the great anniversary of Easter the whole Christian world turns toward the author and founder of our Christian faith. Gratitude to our Heavenly Father for his unspeakable gift cannot prompt every human heart to noblest and purest service to Him for all he has brought to humanity. No better way to express gratitude to God can be found than in working for the good of those around us. The invitation is to all to come and take an active interest in these services.

"Oxford Bear" Candidate for Governor.
Col. F. E. Boothby of Portland, has been induced by the call of his friends to announce himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maine. Boothby was born in Norway and as a boy played and attended school in Norway and South Paris and has made good since leaving Oxford County and it would be gratifying to his friends in this county to have him governor of the State. Undoubtedly he is handicapped in entering the contest so late, but we shall be surprised if he does not show considerable strength in the convention and some of it will come from this county, too.

"Our Boys" will be given in Norway Opera House, Wednesday evening, April 8th, by local talent under the direction of Chester E. Oelrich, for the benefit of the Syrian Sisters. Our Boys will be staged in the usual "Oelrich way." Scenery, stage setting, costumes and lighting effects will be features.

GIVEN 12 YEARS.

Everett is Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Fines in Liquor Cases Mount up into the Thousands.

Court Closed Thursday.

The first of this week's Court report may be found on page 6.

It was generally known that the closing arguments in the Everett murder trial were to begin at the opening of the court Monday morning, and as a result the court house at ten o'clock was literally packed with interested spectators. Mr. Swasey took up the case at just a few minutes after ten o'clock and held the close attention of the jury and audience for fully two hours. Speaking of the confinement of the jury and the undivided attention they had given the case from the start he gradually worked to the subject at hand stating that at the first he had said there would be no evidence withheld and no change as far as he knew from the exact truth. Speaking further of the jury he added that they were not hasty and were, he believed, impartial and unbiased.

He dwelt on the meaning of circumstantial evidence to convict a man of capital offense must be honest and every link must be solid and true. Weakness in the chain and you have broken it. The scene of the explosion was then described in some detail. It is the location of a prospective mining property the value of which he stated was a matter to him and to the jury. Breaks had been made there at various times and places, previous to the night of June 13 when the explosion occurred.

Every possible precaution had been taken to protect the property. Wallace G. Everett had been put in charge of the property. Dealing with the trustworthiness with which he attended to the duty, Mr. Swasey worked down to the heart of the case commenting on the testimony of the various witnesses and noting the habits of Edgar Radcliffe, a young man of 23 years who used liquor, and farther than that he had little to say on the subject.

The State had charged Everett as guilty of murder and claimed that his motive was $3,500 insurance which would come to Everett in case of Radcliffe's death.

Speaking of the assignment of the policy Mr. Swasey stated that at the time it was witnessed by Mr. Gray, Everett voluntarily gave a seat for the insurance to the amount that he put into it. "Is there one word or one act that can show anything but kindness on the part of Wallace G. Everett?" said Mr. Swasey.

The story already given in the testimony of Everett's following a man around on the nights of June 12 and 13 were referred to. It was the theory of the defense that the dynamite was exploded either by knocking it on the floor or in some other manner. They believed that the piece of fuse referred to in the testimony was placed in the road by some one for a purpose, also that the stick of dynamite was placed in the hole after the explosion.

At the close of Mr. Swasey's argument the court adjourned until 2.15 o'clock. The most of the crowd then hustled for their homes or stopping places anxious to get their dinner or the return early in order to get a seat for the afternoon session. Even at this time a large number of people who had not attended in the forenoon began to come in, and at the opening of the afternoon session the court house was packed, crowded and jammed full.

Assistant Attorney General Philbrook in opening the case for the State said that they need not expect the brilliant display that they had listened to in the forenoon. When a human life is blotted under the circumstances which attended the death of Edgar Radcliffe it tended to the duty of the State through its officials to make a thorough and conscientious investigation. Mr. Philbrook stated that there was no malice, no partisanship.

The State has no theories, that word has been used far too many times in your hearing. It has the plain simple duty to perform. The first question is, who had the opportunity, second, who was benefited, the third, broader would be the incriminating question is, to whom do the incriminating circumstances point?

Every shred of evidence in this case points to one man. The three subjects were taken up separately and thoroughly dealt with. So far as the testimony shows Radcliffe was without an enemy on the face of the earth unless it was this man at the bar. The insurance policies were then dealt with and explained. A fact that had not been brought out by the defense was that the $1,000 policy was a 20-year endowment, while the $2,500 was a life policy.

Mr. Philbrook also brought out the fact that at the time the policy was taken out Radcliffe was owing Everett only about $5 and stated that the defendant wanted them to believe that it became necessary to the $1,000 policy to protect him. Mr. Philbrook spoke of the typewritten copy of the assignment, explaining that it was a copy. The loans and indebtedness which Radcliffe had got of Everett hadn't at any time amounted to more than $150. Was there need for more security than the $1,000 policy? Told of the letter written the insurance companies by Everett and explained them.

The $2,500 policy being a life policy was a gambling proposition. The soon or late Radcliffe was dead the better for the State. The defense proposes to satisfy you that this was an accidental death. In order to establish an accidental death there must have been a very sensitive condition of dynamite, second, it must Norway Municipal Court.

Deputy W. A. Bicknell brought Henry Downs before the court, charged with selling liquor at Bryant's Pond. Pleaded not guilty, stood trial and was found guilty. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, amounting to $15.81, and imprisonment 30 days in jail, and 30 days additional for non-payment of fine and costs. He was committed. A case of intoxication against John F. Hopkins, arrested at West Paris by deputy J. M. Bartlett. He pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and costs, in default of which he was sent to jail for 30 days. A search warrant was sworn out by deputy Harry D. Cole of Bryant's Pond issued for stolen property taken from camps in Greenwood owned by George L. Stevens of Bryant's Pond. The search was unsuccessful, nothing was found. The officers have a clue.

Rev. Fr. M. J. Healey.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday evening Rev. Michael J. Healey, pastor of the Yarmouth parish died at the home of his wife at the age of 63. He had been ill for three weeks. Death was due to Bright's disease with which he had been troubled for some time. Father Healey was born in County of Cork, Ireland, where he received his early education. He completed his education for the priesthood in Paris and upon being ordained went to the western part of Africa where he spent four or five years as a missionary. He came to Maine about 18 years ago and shortly afterwards joined the late Monsignor Wallace curate. A short time after the parish in Lewiston was divided, he went to Fr. Butler's parish where he remained until about six years ago when he was sent to the parish at Springvale. He was obliged to leave this, however, after six months work, owing to ill health.

After a rest he went to Father Harrington's parish at Orono where he did the work until a year ago when he was transferred to Yarmouth.

Once a month he has held services at Norway and Paris Catholic church, and was much beloved by his people and respected by all. He was an especially able speaker and his sermons were delivered in an eloquent manner. The last time he was here in February he said he was sick but hoped he might live to celebrate his 65th anniversary, to complete twenty-five years of priesthood.

Father Healey was about 45 years of age. He leaves no relatives. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the C. T. S.

The funeral was held at St. Patrick's church, Lewiston, Thursday forenoon at 10 o'clock, burial at Mt. Hope cemetery.

The Shungopavi Company.

The Shungopavi Company at Norway Opera house Wednesday evening was surely something out of the ordinary. Probably this was the first time that a medicine man dressed in his native costume. They were so interested in him and his way of talking and manner that his individuality overshadowed his magic, though his "white man's tricks" were as good as any of the kind that any white man had ever performed for us.

We did not see the best, "Shungopavi's Illusions" because he could not get any one to go on the stage and tie him. Evidently someone blundered and failed to get assistants for the act and no volunteer helpers were secured. With the spirit of the true medicine man the son of medicine men for generations he said with dignity, "Perhaps you have had enough of us; perhaps you do not want to see any more of us. I am well. The swelling in my side that was so prominent one half hour before was absolutely gone, and all soreness from my bowels. I got up, walked easily to a chair across the room and sat down. I asked for the doctor. He came and examined me, could not fail to see the marked change, but feared results according to his standpoint of medical law, not seeing as I did from the Christian standpoint that God knew no hard cases and had power beyond medical science. I slept like a babe all night; Tuesday, was about the house all day; Wednesday, swept my walk early, went up town to the post-office and felt perfectly well from the hour I was healed. Though strong in body, I preached last Sabbath to a packed house, am happy in Christ.

I want it distinctly understood that while I believe in Divine healing I also believe it is our duty to first use God's means. Hospitals are needed, physicians are a necessity, but what they did not do in my case God did in answer to prayer. Praise His name forever. Respectfully, C. A. Brooks.

A Correction from Last Week's Item Headed "A Modern Miracle."

DEAR EDITOR:—I wish to give the readers of the ADVERTISER a few reliable facts concerning my remarkable cure that occurred Sunday, March 15th, in answer to prayer. I do not want the incident over stated, neither do I want glory taken from God that belongs to Him. I was taken ill Feb. 29th with a very slight soreness in the left side of the abdomen. This soreness increased until Wednesday following. I sought medical advice. After examination it was thought to be a stoppage. Our family physician, Dr. Bradbury, whom we considered one of the best, worked faithfully to help me. At times there seemed to be some relief but no permanent help.

The following Monday, Dr. Bartlett was brought on consultation, who stated my case was a hospital one. The following morning Dr. Webster of Lewiston was also called, and decided on immediate operation. I asked for a little time to decide with my family about going to the Portland hospital, when I got this message from God's word, "Thy God whom thou serveest continually, he will deliver thee."—Ps. 124.

Having been healed by prayer before, and getting this Scripture at that moment of decision, it prevented me from going to the hospital or consenting to any operation. Not being able to take any food and suffering with so much pain I fainted rapidly. Friday morning, my physician prescribed an injection of sweet oil and hot water, that was referred to last week, which was given with very distressing effects. The same treatment had produced days before, and however much good it may have done there was no apparent results, and it was the last thing of the kind done for me.

I grew rapidly worse that day and was told before eight by physicians who asked me once more to yield to an operation, that I did not have an even chance with an operation, and not more than one chance in 100 without one. On Saturday Drs. Barker and Stanton were called at different times with no encouragement from either. Dr. Trufant stated later that he did not expect to see me alive again.

On Sunday morning I was having sinking spells and chills. The doctor spoke of my forming in my side, and for the last time asked if I would allow him to send for a surgeon to have an operation. I said I could not the way I felt about it. I knew the pastors and churches were praying for my recovery, and our united prayer meeting in my behalf and held to a late hour. Yet Sunday morning was my darkest hour. I thought of my family, and I had absolutely refused good medical advice, and my sickness day after day, and the fact that for the last time I asked if I would allow him to send for a surgeon to have an operation.

The Children's Theatre.

Mildred Seitz, the daughter of Don C. Seitz, of Brooklyn, N. Y., frequently visits Norway with her parents and is a favorite with the young people as well as the older ones she has met here. She has recently written for The Advertiser, the school paper of the Adolph Academy of Brooklyn, a story of the children's theatre, that will be of interest to people who believe in charities that improve and make better instead of just relieve for the time, just tide over. Even doubtful things may be made for good if controlled by a skilled and artistic hand. This is the story:

Four years ago Miss A. Minnie Herts undertook to reform the Entertainment Department of the Educational Alliance, which is in the heart of the East Side, on Jefferson street and East Broadway. Miss Herts had for a long time studied the ways of the East Side people, and knew their craving for amusement. The cheap music halls and theatres were the only means of entertainment they had, and Miss Herts believed that from these people, old and young alike, obtained wrong ideals. Then the idea of the Children's Theatre came to her. Of course there were many difficulties to overcome, but prominent people became interested in it. Playwrights gave plays, and managers stood ready to help. The greatest difficulty to overcome was the problem of securing actors and actresses. First-rate artists on Broadway, and even second and third-rate ones were far beyond the means of the Children's Theatre. At last the difficulty was solved. Why not have the children play for the children?

Notices were posted asking all who were interested to come to a reading of "The Tempest." A great many came, but it was difficult to choose persons to play the parts. At last arrangements were completed, and the first play given was "The Tempest." Never before was it so fearfully or wonderfully portrayed, but it marked a great beginning. It made the people of the Ghetto forget their sordid surroundings and gave them a glimpse of trees and flowers and outdoor life. The first regular matinee season began October, 1905, with the production of "The Little Princess."

Now the theatre is in full swing. They have regular seasons, and the plays change from time to time. Every detail with regard to stage setting and costuming is carefully carried out. The Children's Theatre has produced eight plays: "The Tempest," "As You Like It," "Ingomar," "The Forest Ring," "Snow White," "The Little Lord Fauntleroy," "The Little Princess," and "The Prince and the Pauper."

It was fortunate enough to attend a performance of the latter. The work the children do is marvelous. Except for certain set stage business, they are allowed to carry out their own impulses. The acting, though of course not up to the highest Broadway standard, is far better than that in the cheap theatres. The acting of the two little girls who played the "Princess" and the "Pauper" was wonderful. There is no lack of grace and talent among the children of the East Side. Besides the regular cast there are "understudies," and even two or three sets of "emergencies." There were no less than three hundred children in the cast of "The Prince and the Pauper."

Audience and cast alike is made up of children and young people who all day work in sweat shops or in stuffy offices. The scene shifters are boys sixteen or seventeen years of age, and they accomplish their work with a swiftness and quietness which would do credit to professionals. The orchestra is made up of boys and girls who for ten cents a lesson receive good instruction from teachers connected with the Alliance. Sunday, their one holiday, is the only day matinees can be given, and to these swarm hundreds of children. The theatre accommodates seven hundred, but when a play is new thirteen hundred are packed in, while two thousand may be turned away.

Under the Sunday observance law these performances, which so far proved the greatest aid in making good citizens of the children of the Ghetto, have been stopped. But while the children suffer by this outrage, the grown people are benefited for immediately plays for them were put on. Three little one-act plays were given, "Hop o' My Thumb," "Comedy Royal," and "The End of the Way."

There are classes for studying the plays, and everyone has an opportunity to act sooner or later. The office of the theatre is filled continually with children copying different parts. The wardrobe mistress is a girl eleven years old, and her word is law. She allots the most elaborate costumes and "jewels," once the property of Fanny Davenport, to those whom she knows will take the best care of them. Fanny has grown up with the theatre, as she made her first appearance when six years old at "Arlecchino" in "The Tempest." She puts the finishing touches to the costumes and helps the slowest child make a quick change and be back in the wings before her cue.

A year of class study intervenes between each Shakespearean production. Now they are studying "The Merchant of Venice." By the time it is presented next fall the whole East Side will be familiar with it. The results of this theatre are many. By seeing and portraying fine characters the children form fine ideals. Then as each play is presented there is a great demand for the book. After the production of "The Tempest" one thousand copies of the play were bought by the people of the East Side.

Most people are familiar with the story of "The Little Princess" or "Sara Crewe." Those who are will know that the play opens with a birthday party given in honor of Sara. When the play was presented at the Children's Theatre, thirty children were chosen for girls in the party. When the time for dress rehearsal came many brought requests from mothers asking that the children be allowed to wear their own best dresses—gaily affairs, resplendent with lace and ribbons. Miss Herts persuaded them to let the children wear the simple white dresses with the colored ribbons provided for them. The mothers were so pleased with the result that thereafter the children's best dresses showed much more taste and refinement.

A high standard is set for the English speech, which is for the East Side the greatest stumbling block. When a boy is given a part the responsibility straightens his stooping shoulders and corrects his slouching gait. The clothes of all queen and court ladies are put on and off with the play, but the grace and dignity acquired become the personal characteristics of the player.

When the Theatre first opened the admission was five cents. Now it is ten. Just after it had been raised Miss Herts asked several boys in the audience if their mothers were willing for them to pay ten. The reply was: "Sure! Yes!"

LOCAL READERS ASK MORE ABOUT COOPER

Lively Interest Taken in the Account of His Work Printed in this Paper Last Week

Big Demand for the Cooper Remedies at F. P. Stone's Drug Store Causes Much Comment

For the past several weeks the famous Cooper Remedies have been selling in quantities that far surpass anything ever introduced here. Mr. F. P. Stone, the local agent, says he has never before handled remedies that proved to be so popular. There seems to be no abatement to the interest displayed by local people in the work of Mr. Cooper in Chicago, the following account of which is from the Journal of that city.

During the past two weeks hundreds of voluntary testimonials have been given at Cooper's headquarters, The Public Drug Company, 150 State street, on efficiency of the Cooper preparations for deafness, stomach complaints, rheumatism, and as a general spring tonic.

Among the recent callers was Mrs. Emma Stanley, living at 713 Washington Boulevard. She told her story in a most convincing manner, and many persons who stood around her, endorsed all she had to say in praise of the Cooper remedies. She said:

"Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper has had to deal with. I was troubled with both deafness and stomach complaints. I don't know that one thing had anything to do with the other, but I do know that I tried many patent medicine preparations without result. I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock tick and my stomach was in such wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate."

"I was very nervous and could hardly sleep. I had a roaring noise in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak."

"One day I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I have just started on my fourth bottle and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quiet-ed, my hearing is much improved, and I feel like a new woman."

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well again, so that I may now enjoy life like I used to before I was sick."

Among the many callers yesterday was Mr. George P. Lutz, 300 Center street, who had been a sufferer from stomach trouble for many years. He said:

"I suffered several years from indigestion and stomach trouble. At times I was very weak and nervous, had dizzy spells, headache and felt tired and miserable nearly all the time. Sleep at night gave me no strength and I was always tired in the morning. My appetite was also impaired; once in a while I could eat a good meal, but most of the time I had no desire for food."

"One day I saw the advertisement of Cooper and read of his remedies. I went at once to get the medicine, and after I had taken a few doses I was relieved of an enormous tapeworm. Now I know what caused my suffering. My stomach feels as easy now, as if a great weight had been removed, and my health improved rapidly. I have a good appetite and am completely restored in strength."

"I am very thankful to Mr. Cooper for all that his medicine has done for me, and I heartily recommend it to all persons who feel exhausted, and are probably troubled as I was."

"It has done all that has been claimed for it in my case and has helped me where all other medicines failed."

Hundreds of people are daily calling to see Mr. Cooper with the same story of restored health, strength and happiness, which only proves that all that has been said and written about the medicine is undoubtedly true.

If You Wish You Can Know.

Hon. W. T. Haines of Waterville feels certain he will capture the Republican nomination for Governor. He says the eastern section of the State is solid for him.

If this be true and the delegates from the western section divide up between Fernald and Boothby why hasn't he got it without much help from this section but there is no doubt he will have some votes from this section.

As many newspaper misrepresentations of his position on rearmament are current, especially in this section, if any of our readers desire to be set right regarding them a letter addressed to Hon. W. T. Haines, Waterville, will receive a prompt, courteous reply.

If uncertain or in doubt, write and our word for it your letter will receive prompt attention.

A Vacancy—Littlefield Out.

This means that a new man must be elected at the next September election to represent this district in Congress. There are plenty of Republican candidates in the field and some from this county. Undoubtedly Hon. John F. Swasey of Canton could get a solid delegation from this county should he announce himself a candidate.

Hon. Henry H. Hastings of Bethel would make a strong candidate should he start out in earnest.

Judge A. E. Stearns of Rumford Falls has been mentioned as a candidate. And there are others.

Vol. Inf., at the battle of the Wilderness, Va., May 3-7, 1864, he was severely wounded in the right side by a shell, causing fracture of the ribs. He was sent to general hospital at Philadelphia, where he remained for six weeks, when he rejoined his regiment at Petersburg, Va., and on Sept. 30, 1864, he was captured by the Confederates at Virginia and held a prisoner six months to a day in Libby and Salisbury prisons, when he was paroled and sent to Chestnut Hill hospital on account of being struck by the butt of a gun in the hand of his captor on the left side of the head, causing a severe wound extending below the ear on to his face. At the same time he had a bayonet pass through his right leg into the knee of his left leg and always bore the mark of thirteen lances in the same. He served his country with honor and was discharged from Shiloh June 14, 1865, by reason of expiration of term of service. After the war he spent many years in the West. About twenty years ago he returned to Maine and made his home in Albany the remaining years of his life. He died March 12th, 1908, at the age of 60 years and 17 days. Besides a widow he leaves four sons, a daughter, five brothers and many other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. He was a genial, generous neighbor, and a kind and loving husband and father, and will be much missed by all who knew him.

Miss Holmes had everything in readiness for an enjoyable evening when the guests arrived and after a half hour of social chat the gentlemen were requested to enter the dining-room while the ladies remained in the parlor. Each received a stick of candy and soon the ladies wended their way into the dining-room, as it is leap year, to find their partners, the one who possessed a like stick of candy, for the games of finch and whist which followed. There were three tables of whist and two of finch. Harold Thayer, being an expert at whist received a white Teddy bear which entertained him the remainder of the evening, and one less fortunate received a large lemon as his reward.

Refreshments consisting of fudge, salted peanuts, ice cream and cake, were served by Helen Holmes, Mildred Holmes and Dorothy Tabbs. Each one was treated to a piece of the birthday cake which was a present from Mrs. Percy Noyes, and it was, in fact, too handsome to cut. It was white frosted with a large pink rose and green leaves in the center with a vine design around the edge, all in colored frosting. Everyone present enjoyed the evening very much, and at a late hour, departed, wishing their hostess many returns of the day.

The Two Invinibles

Cod Liver Oil and Iron.

Cod liver oil and iron in some form or other are prescribed by physicians the world over, more than any other two remedies the world has ever known, for anemia or poor blood, weakness, convalescence, and all wasting and pulmonary diseases.

Iron, because it is the basis of the blood and without a sufficient amount the blood is impoverished, watery, pale and impure.

Cod Liver Oil, because it contains curative and reconstructive qualities greater than that possessed by any other medicinal agent.

In Vinol, modern science has given to the world a combination of these two world-famed tonics—Cod Liver Oil and Iron, but shorn of all useless oil or disagreeable features.

Vinol is made by a scientific extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body-builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unequalled.

We ask Norway people to give Vinol a trial. It won't cost anything unless it gives satisfaction. Frank P. Stone, Druggist, Norway, Me.

Charles A. Howe was recalled and Mr. Swasey through the cross examination asked Howe at whose request he made the measurements relating to the blood spots found in the vicinity of the explosion, and witness said that it was at no one's request.

For what purpose did you make them? asked Mr. Swasey.

So that I would know.

Was it important that you make a memorandum of these measurements?

For a long time the witness hesitated and finally said that he did not understand the question and Judge Whitehouse put it to him by asking why he made the measurements. Witness said because he wanted to be sure of them.

On re-direct the county attorney asked witness if he meant it to be understood by his answer in regard to the piece of fuse found in the roadway, that it was not there at the time of his search? And he answered that what he meant to convey was that it was not seen by him at the time of his first search.

James W. Gibbs, workman at the mines, testified that on the day of the explosion he secured dynamite for use at the Crystal out from Everett, and told Everett there would be no need to put any dynamite in the little house as they would not need any. The dynamite which he secured that day was taken from the big dynamite house farther up the hill. On his arrival at the works next morning Everett told him that Radcliffe had come to the mine the night before and had been blown all to hell.

A few days after the accident he had said to Everett, "You act nervous," and Everett replied, "My God, why wouldn't I?" One day Everett had caught witness around the neck and said, "G—d—y, I've got a mind to kill you," and then laughed.

On cross examination, a great many questions and answers which had been put to witness at the preliminary hearing in the former trial, together with his answers which were at variance with those made Thursday morning were read to witness by Mr. Swasey, and he said he could not remember of making such answers.

Llewellyn Lewis of Paris, another workman at the mine, found a piece of dynamite about six feet west of the hole made by the explosion. He smelt of it and detected the odor of burned salt petre.

On cross-examination he was asked if Everett did not take his place at the mine, and said he did not so understand it.

You were discharged, weren't you? asked Mr. Swasey.

No, sir.

Why did you get through?

I was laid off.

To prove that money was the motive was accomplished by the introduction of the insurance policies upon the life of Radcliffe and the papers showing where they had been assigned to Everett.

Francis Wilson worked at the Crocker Hill mine in the winter of 1907 and Everett had told him that inside of two years he would own the best farm at Paris Hill.

Sidney Thayer and Alva A. Swift lived near the mine and feared the explosion. Radcliffe was not at their home at any time during the day of the explosion. Emulus Benson succeeded Everett as caretaker at the mine. He described conditions as he found them there after the explosion. His description was not at variance with that of preceding witnesses.

Solomon C. Buck, uncle of the dead boy, said his nephew was not at his house the night of the explosion. Several other witnesses, living near the mine, testified likewise.

George E. Drake, cousin of Radcliffe, said that in 1905, Everett was at his place at Walker's Mills and said that the officers were after him for blowing up a well and that Eddie Radcliffe was against him. Everett, said witness, said that if Ed went against him, he and his folks would be G—d—y sorry.

On cross-examination he said he didn't know just when it was but thought it was in the spring. He didn't know that afterwards Radcliffe lived with Everett and they were good friends.

Dr. Franklin C. Robinson of Bowdoin college had examined the stain found on Radcliffe's knife and said it was human blood. Had examined the man's stomach and found that it contained undigested potato, pork, apple and apple skin. Also found about one-quarter ounce of alcohol.

On cross-examination he said that from two to three hours are required to digest pork and he didn't think there was sufficient alcohol in the stomach to retard the digestion.

Dr. B. F. Bradbury of Norway assisted at the autopsy upon the remains of Radcliffe. Bodies were severely bruised and lacerated but not sufficiently to cause death. The left foot had been blown away. Found a cut on throat. It started about a quarter of an inch to the left of the median line and extended to the right of it for about an inch and three-quarters. At extreme right, it was upward and inward for about half an inch, then turned and went directly across the throat.

This wound was made with a sharp pointed instrument, having a flat back. It penetrated 2 1/2 inches into the throat. It cut the artery of the tongue, the muscles of that organ and the right wing of the hyoid bone, and the membrane of the third vertebra. To make this cut, knife must be held almost horizontal and slightly upward.

Found a little congestion of the brain and when opened skull detected odor of alcohol. Heart was sound and nearly empty. Lungs congested and dark. Each contained a watery serum at bottom and bloody froth at top. When he cut the stomach from gullet, preparatory to sending to Dr. Robinson, pieces of undigested apple came out of the gullet. They were accompanied by a smell of alcohol.

On cross-examination, witness said that under certain conditions the cut might be sufficient to cause death. One of these conditions would be unconsciousness. In such an event death would come in 2 or 3 hours. His reason for saying that wound was made with an instrument having a flat back, was because the right end of the cut was ragged.

Dr. J. G. Littlefield, physician who saw Radcliffe the night of the explosion, said he saw cut in throat at 11 o'clock. Assisted at autopsy. His statement of disclosures at autopsy was identical with those of Dr. Bradbury.

Dr. John F. Thompson of the Maine General Hospital, had had experience with knife wounds. He had examined the cut in Radcliffe's throat and gave it as his opinion that the wound was made with an instrument similar to Radcliffe's knife.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardonia, N. Y., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

This wound might have been made by a flying missile, but in his opinion, it was not. Had it been he should have expected to have found the missile in the wound.

Is it your opinion, doctor, that the wound was self inflicted, asked Mr. Barnes.

My opinion is that it was not self inflicted, without intent. It seems quite obvious from the nature of the wound that it was made with intent.

Dr. Charles D. Smith, also of the Maine General Hospital, testified briefly with reference to the food found in the stomach. Fred Harding and Joseph B. Cole said that Radcliffe was afraid of dynamite. The closed the State's direct case and the county attorney announced that the prosecution rested.

Friday was occupied by Attorney Swasey's opening for the defense and the testimony of Mr. Batchelder, superintendent of the mine, as to the time of the explosion, relative to the employment of Everett, the stock of dynamite on hand, construction of buildings connected with the plant and prospecting on Crocker Hill.

Francis Wilson who testified on Thursday, was recalled and stated at the time of his giving evidence the previous day, he had not been sworn. The oath was administered and witness repeated his testimony of Thursday.

Mr. Swasey said that the defense would be practically the same in the former trial, i. e., that Edgar Radcliffe's death was the result of an explosion in the little dynamite house on the Brown mine and that the explosion was caused by Radcliffe's acts while in the building. He contended that all the State had established by its direct evidence was that Radcliffe was dead and that an explosion had occurred. In the stories which Everett had told to the witnesses of the State, there was nothing to indicate guilt.

Mr. Swasey called eight witnesses, among them being John Clifford of Lewiston who has been called as an expert on dynamite.

Walter L. Gray testified to witnessing the assignment of the $1,000 life insurance policy to Everett. He also told of breaks which were made at the building on the mine while he was in charge of it.

Henry R. Batchelder of Washington, N. H., in charge of the mine, said that Everett went to work there in the summer of 1906, as a common workman, and later was put in charge of the dynamite and finally became caretaker, and remained in the employ of the concern until his arrest. Witness knew of breaks which had been made in the building at the mine. He visited the mine at the time of the explosion. He said that the odor of burned powder would remain in the mine for two or three hours under favorable conditions.

State exhibit No. 12, a piece of fuse found in the road near the scene of the explosion, was shown witness and he said in his opinion it had been exposed to the weather for a long time, weeks or months.

Exhibit 13, another small piece of fuse found near the scene of the explosion, he said in his opinion had been much longer exposed to the weather than exhibit 12. He had given Everett instruction to watch all persons coming onto the property at night, and if he could not catch them in the act of committing some offense, if they committed no offense not to molest them.

Dr. Fleming and John D. Clifford of Lewiston were the two witnesses of the afternoon session. Both were called as experts on dynamite.

Turnkey Farren of the jail was then called and gave some information concerning some exhibits. He was followed by Charles Colby, who identified Radcliffe's knife. On cross examination he denied that Charles Harlow ate supper at his house on the night of the explosion, but he did on the preceding night.

F. W. Everett, son of the respondent, had found a piece of burned fuse on the mine property 200 feet north of the scene of explosion on the 17th of November after the first trial of the case.

Charles Harlow, one of the witnesses of Friday afternoon, was recalled and said that on the night of the explosion when Radcliffe left the Colby supper table, Radcliffe took two apples from the plate.

Superintendent Batchelder of the mine was recalled and explained that on the Saturday after the explosion, Everett had told him at Mr. Brown's that the assignment on the policies of Radcliffe had been given to protect him for money advanced to pay the premiums; also that they did not contain 60 per cent. dynamite in their hands.

On cross examination he said that Everett's statement, relative to the insurance assignments, was made as a result of inquiry by him.

Harlow, morning Everett was called. He said he went years ago, had been in Paris 25 years and had been a farmer, doing other kinds of work. He went to work at the mine as a common laborer in 1906 in May. Later became caretaker and had charge of the dynamite. Explained the construction of the little dynamite house, and said that it had two shelves on the inside. They were eight inches at the right of the door as you entered. On the lower shelf was kept boxes in which was dynamite and electric caps. On the upper shelf was a pile of steel and a pile of nails of various sizes.

In one of the boxes there were six sticks of 60 per cent. dynamite. In the other were two sticks of 80 per cent. and some small pieces. In the third box were the caps. The large dynamite house had been entered and 47 sticks of dynamite taken from it. These were afterwards found under the house.

Witness was here shown the shoe taken from Everett's right foot in the sole of which was a wire nail, similar to the nails on the floor.

On the day of the explosion he had been to the large dynamite house and got dynamite for Howe and Gibbs but did not tell them there was some dynamite in the house.

Witness had known Radcliffe from the time he was a boy of six years and had employed him a good deal. The last time was in 1905 when Radcliffe worked for him four months and 12 days. It was during this period that the first insurance policy for $1,000 was taken out. It was done at the respondent's suggestion. The assignment of the policy was made to protect Everett for money advanced to pay the premium. It was a 20-year policy.

The second policy of $2500 was taken out by Radcliffe without Everett's knowledge but was later assigned to him for the same reason as the first policy. Radcliffe was at the mine on Sunday, May 5, 1907, and stayed about two hours. He never drank there.

Witness said he sent to Kentucky for 14 quarts of whiskey for Gibbs and Howe and others. Out of the whiskey, he, Everett, got one-half pint and never sold liquor. At the cook house he had some whiskey of his own and some maple syrup in long neck bottles. On the night of the 12th of June, witness said that Radcliffe was on the property and was followed by him but he did not take anything or commit any mischief.

On the night of June 13, the night of the explosion, witness was at the mine to the stable by the noise of the horse found nothing wrong there, but was convinced by the attitude of the animal that some person was on the property. He climbed the mill, took his rifle, which he loaded with 5 cartridges, and went to the mill, where he saw a man and followed him around until they reached the little dynamite house.

The man went into the house and came out, lighted a pipe, looked around and went back into the house. A short time later the man came out, lighted another pipe and then went back.

This time Everett slipped up to the door and fastened it with planks.

Then he started for the mill to notify the office at Paris Hill. From the man's swearing, after the door was locked he recognized the voice of Edgar Radcliffe. As he reached the mill the explosion occurred. He notified Mr. Winslow and went to the cook house, put on a pair of rubbers, took his rifle, which he loaded with 5 cartridges, and went to the mill, where he saw a man and followed him around until they reached the little dynamite house.

HEALTH In Childhood

means health in later years. As the child builds the adult shall be. Weak, neglected children do not grow to vigorous men and womenhood. Childhood complaints yield easily to proper treatment—but they do not correct themselves. The weak stomach, pallid complexion, listless bearing, irritable temper, disturbed sleep, speak plainly of the ailments common to children, most of which have their origin in disordered stomach and bowels.

Dr. True's Elixir

For indigestion, irritability, constipation, poor appetite, peevishness, fever, stomach and liver troubles and worms it is unequalled. Parents of two generations have relied upon it. It restores sound, vigorous health when nothing else will. First it removes the cause, then aids nature to repair the damage; builds anew the waste, enriches the blood and sends a glow of health and vigor to every organ and tissue of the body. Found True Remedy.

Frank Kimball Sure Mi-o-na Will Cure

Indigestion.

In no other way can you so quickly, so readily and so positively stimulate the stomach to good health as by using Mi-o-na. Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, feels so sure that this remedy will restore to health every person suffering with stomach troubles that he sells it under a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. This shows conclusively its superiority over the ordinary old-fashioned digestives.

The underlying cause of most nervous debility, headache, sleeplessness and melancholy is faulty nutrition, the result of a weakened stomach and inactive bowels. Mi-o-na strengthens the stomach muscles, regulates the bowels and thus makes digestion easy and natural.

A 50-cent box of Mi-o-na lasts a couple of weeks, and will ward off a dozen attacks of indigestion and bring good health to the weakest stomach. 12-15

Aunt Patty's Plain Talks.

When I hear some pert young man or woman (and as a rule they are very young) sneering and making flippant remarks about old women, I often think that they, as well as people in general, are more indebted to old women than they would be willing to acknowledge for hard work without compensation is their portion.

Who makes and keeps the fire burning at home, and does the drudgery that daily living makes? Old women.

Who spends weary days and nights of tiresome vigil for you when sick? Old women.

Who are forbearing, patient, kind, and would gladly warn the younger ones of the snares and pitfalls spread for their unwary feet? Old women.

Who from long years of experience can see rocks ahead that your unaccustomed eyes fail to discern? Old women.

They feel the slights and sneers even more than the young, who cannot realize how hard it is to be set aside because they are one of the old women.

Gems of Thought—Selected.

The great man is he, who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the secret temptation from without and within; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and most fearless under menaces and frowns; and whose reliance in truth, on virtue, on God is most unflinching.

No great character is formed in this world without suffering and self denial.

Our best doing is our best enjoyment.

Opinions alter, manners change, creeds rise and fall, but the moral law is written on the tablets of eternity.

SETH.

Mrs. E. H. Pratt and baby boy of Oakland have been stopping a few days with her parents, A. W. Grover and wife.

Our soldiers' monument has been erected on the heater between Mechanic and Main streets. It is made of granite

21 feet in height, the figure being a private soldier in full uniform with musket, at rest. Our citizens are proud of it.

Middle Interval.

George Osgood has been at home.

Frank Osgood has gone to Sunday

River to work for J. A. Thurston.

Millie Oliver and the Buck children have resumed their studies at Gould

Academy.

Several in this vicinity have been hauling lumber to the chair factory to be sawed for home use, thus beautifying our homes in this lovely valley of the Androscoggin.

A letter from the widow of late Capt.

G. C. Pratt says her health is so much improved that she soon hopes to return to her old home. She has been staying with her brother, Charles Penley, a veteran of the Civil War. She and two brothers are the only surviving members of the large family of Joseph and Lovina

Penley of South Paris. The writer remembers in early childhood of living with her grandparents on the old farm and Mrs. Sarah Pratt (nee Penley) was then a young woman of fine appearance.

It was then she formed the acquaintance of G. C. Pratt who afterwards listened become a soldier in the Civil War. Her brother, Charles Penley, also enlisted then. Charles is still living, but her husband has passed to the ranks beyond where the old soldiers are fast hastening and it behooves the younger generation to remember who risked their lives to save our flag and bring us equal rights and freedom.

NORWAY CENTER.

Mrs. Dora Wyman has been up to Alfred Wyman's to help care for their little
